> A rumor of the proposed sale of the old Quaker meetigs house on Clay Street for use as a colored church has caused considerable stir among the residents, and the entire neigh borhood is up in arms about the matter. The Quaker Temple is at No. East Clay, in one of the best resident sections of that street, and is surrounded by neat, well-kept houses. On the opposite corner is the St. Mark's Episcopal Church, and one block above is the large handsome building of the Clay Street Methodist Church. The Quaker congregation in Richmond has been gradually dwindling for some years, and now but a few families remain. Nearly a year ago the congregation decided to dispose of the old temple, as it was no longer practicable to support the regular services, and the congregation has been for some time without a pastor. Mr. R. A. Ricks is the presiding elder, and has held services each Sunday for some months past. The matter of the sale of the temple was entrusted to Mr. W. A. Ricks, to negotiate a sale and report back to the congregation, and for some time a placard has been on the building announcing that it was for sale.

Mr. James H. Crenshaw, a real estate agent of Richmond, who is negotiating the sale in behalf of certain Northern interests, said last night that he would not advise the sale to persons who proposed to use the building as a colored church, as property along this part of Clay Street was valuable and in good demand. Mr. Crenshaw said that he would certainly not be a party to such would certainly not be a party to such would certainly not be a party to such a sale unless it were a public sale, in which the white people who owned in the neighborhood had an opportunity to protect themselves.

Mr. R. A. Ricks stated yesterday that according to the regulations of the Friends' Church the sale would have to be confirmed by a meeting of the congregation, before it could become binding, and that he did not think that a majority of the members of the congregation would favor selling the property to negroes, if the neighbors property to negroes, if the neighbors

A business meeting of the congregation was scheduled for Saturday afternoon, when it was expected that this matter would be discussed, but was postponed on account of a funeral. If any definite proposition is forthcoming for the purchase of the property, a meeting can be called at any time, when, according to the Quaker custom, the meeting will "wait" for a decision in the matter, each one who feels moved or called upon to express his opinion speaking, without a general vote being taken.

It is said that if the colored people secure the property they will also wish a residence on the same block for their preacher.

Several families who rent houses in this section have notified their agents that they will move at once if negroes come into the block, and it is probable that any such move would result in a great depreciation of values.

Colored families live in a parallel block on Leigh Street and on several cross streets in this section, but so far have not secured property on this part of Clay Street.

Delegation Left Here Last Night. Will Boom Richmond and Exposition.

A delegation of Richmonders left Saturday night to attend the annual session of the Master House Painters and Decorators of America and Canada, which will be held in Boston from February 12th to 16th.

Three years ago the convention was held in Richmond, with about 500 deleheid in Richmond, with about 500 delegates in attendance, but at the Boston session there will probably be between 1,000 to 1,200 delegates.

President Robert Lee Peters, of the Richmond Common Council, is past president of the association, and when he left last 'evening, in company with Mossrs. August Hetzer, Michael Ganzert, P. D. Wharton, A. W. Hargrove, Frank Spiess and a number of others, he said that while there were no hopes of securing the convention for Norfolk or Richmond, the delegation would be armed with enough literature and a sufficient number of souvenirs to convince the delegates that the Jamestown Exposition will be one of the most his-wince the delegates that the Jamestown Exposition will be one of the most historic, patriotic and instructive that has been held in modern times.

"We do not expect to land the convention," said Mr. Peters, "because it would be impossible, as we meet in February of each year, but our executive committee, a body of nearly 100 will be prevailed upon to meet in this city in August as the guests of the local association for a pilgrimage to the exposition."

Under the advice of Captain Wise he has sued the election officers for a large sum of money as damages for refusing him the right to vote under the old Constitution, claiming that the new Constitution is no good in that it was illegally promulgated, and is therefore invalid, and that the real law of Virginia is the old Constitution. The case has been long pending in the United States Court, and will be called for final settlement next Wednesday.

Captain Wise will represent Brickhouse, and will probably be assisted by the colored lawyer, Hayes. Attorney-General Anderson will represent the Commonwealth of Virginia.

Of course, no one knows what the report will be, or who will it; but the only excuse Senator Strode gave for such an impression was Strode gave for such an impression was that he entered his protest against going outside of matters relating to school books. He was of opinion that the powers and duties of the committee, under the resolution which created the body, permitted it to deal only with this question; but when Messrs. Saturday next in obedeence to an order creating a Virginia brigade and directing them to be elect a colonel. As already forecast by The Times-Dispatch, Colonel C. C. Vaughan, Jr., of Franklin, will almost certainly be the brigadier-general. In that event a colonel will have to be chosen later by the officers of the Seventy-first, and the probability is that Lieutenant-Colonel Thomas J. Nottingham will be selected.

Governor Swanson will entertain at dinner that evening at 8 o'clock at the mansion the regimental officers of the three commands, and also the commissioned officers of the five Richmond companies of the Seventieth Regiment, the officers of the Blues Battalion and of the Richmond Howitzers. The dinner promises to be a brilliant and enjoyable affair, and will bring together socially one of the largest gatherings of officers assembled here since the Spanish War. Colonel Vaughan, who is said to be slated for the position of brigadier, has been in the service for ten years or more, is a veteran of the Spanish War and a soldler who has risen to the command of his regiment on his merits. He is a graduate of Randolph-Macon College, is a banker and successful business man of Franklin. Southampton county. He will be probably the youngest brigadier the State has had for a long time, being hardly more than forty years of age.

Week at Bostock's.

Week at Bostock's.

Never has Director Frank C. Bostool presented a program here more filled with sensational acts, human daring courage and exposure to real danger than this week's bill. The fighting tiger, Goldle, together with lions, pumas, cheetahs, hyenas and bears, in one act, gives all the sensational promises that anyone could look for in a wild animal arena. Joyat has to keep his wits carefully about him all the time he is in the presence of the men-cater from Bengal, and added to this live peril is the fact that many of the other beasts in this combination group often follow the example set them by Goldle and try for the life of their daring French trainer.

At the Academy.

"It's All Your Fault" will be seen again at the Academy of Music on Wednesday of this week.

The play has a plot and around this plot is woven a series of events that are of the most ludricous nature. Mr. Charles J. Stine, in the role of Caxton Coulter, and Miss Olice Evans, as Flora Reasley, are billed as the stars, but there are others who deserve great credit and not the least of them is Master Pincus, as Archibald, the boy who is the cause of it all. Archibald is palmed off as Howard Beasley's son, when in realty Howard has no son, and the untangling of the mystery gives rise to all the fun.

The much-talked-of Rogers Brothers The much-tarked-of Rokers Bothers Company, which is conceded to be the largest musical farce organization in America, will be here this week. The play is called "The Rogers Brothers in Ireland," and is said to be the prettest, funniest and tunefullest comedy McNally has ever written for these popular comedians. It will be at the Academy on Friday night.

At the Bijou

Academy on Friday night.

At the Bijou.

"Lena Rivers," a dramatization of Mrs. Mary J. Holmes's novel, will be presented at the Bijou Theatre this week. The cast will be headed by Miss Benlan Poynter, as Lena. The play has been an instant hit this season, and has repeated its hit everywhere presented, it has been given a metropolitan oveak point is to be found either in cast, seenery or costuming. The latter has become a feature of the attraction, and the gowns worn by the dides of the company, live in number, are said to be most beautiful.
